

BEN Y.

Egg Farmer, Rocker, World Traveler

I was born and raised in the coastal mountains of Northern California. I grew up in the fog and redwoods. I went to the Bridge School, and then to Half Moon Bay High. Now I own my own business, Ben's Coastside Farms. I raise chickens for their eggs. We are certified organic, and totally free range. When I'm not on the ranch I'm traveling around the country, or the world, and going to concerts. I'm totally into music, anything that's good, especially rock. I also like to go to movies and to go bowling with my friends.

I have cerebral palsy, which can make it difficult for me to communicate, but if someone is willing to learn how I communicate then it's pretty easy to understand. I use a communication device called a Dynavox to assist in communication. I also have some good friends that are my communication partners and they help facilitate activities and conversations with me.
